

Can you tell me about yourself?

Good morning, and nice to meet you, my name is Ethan.

Im a student in CS major from NTUT, and have ability to write many programing language such as Python, C++ or Dart. And I also intresting in learning new things. Take my github repository for example, there are many side project on there, which I personally want to made.

Why do you want to work at Google ?

Because I really appreciate the working atomsphere here.

Everyone can discuss thing equally without the pressure. This can help us improve the productivity and think stuffs broader. Also google is known as the worlds leading search engine and cloud services provider. These title attracts me to your amazing company.

How do you manage deadlines under pressure ?

I will stop at first, and then sort the tasks in the order of the severity. Then I'll do the tasks that's the most important first and try my best to make the list completed.

I think this can lead us to the best situation in the end.

Describe a time when you solved a problem in a team setting.

When I'm in my first grade of senior high, our final project team group faced a problem which the requirement we initially set is too hard to achieved.

At that time, my responsibility is to develop the application on the cellphone. So I purpose to slightly simplify the user interface to cut down the tasks that is too difficult for us. By doing so, we shorten the days of developemnt stage and mad the project could be handed in in time.
